Revised Contents in the Supplementary Fee Schedule of the DBS Treasures Private Client Fee Schedule
Types of Investment / Service	Capacity and Details of Benefits Received by the Bank and/or any of its associates	Range of Monetary Benefits Received by the Bank and/or any of its associates ¹
Investment Funds (including but not limited to Private Market Funds, Unit Trust Funds & Mutual Funds)	The Bank is acting as your distributor or agent and not as your principal. The Bank and/or any of its associates is/are entitled to receive commission and other fees from the fund house, including the rebate of the subscription and switching fee, and sharing of management fee ² . The Bank and/or any of its associates will receive marketing sponsorship from the product issuer. The subscription and switching fees receivable by the Bank and/ or any of its associates vary according to factors such as fund type, transaction amount, and is subject to the distribution agreement with individual product issuer. The amount receivable by the Bank and/or any of its associates may also represent a discount on the subscription/ switching fee stated on the fund's prospectus, fund fact sheet, or other offering documents such as bilateral Subscription Agreement.	For the actual subscription fee and the switching fee rebate receivable by the Bank and/or any of its associates on individual transaction, please refer to the subscription confirmation or contact your Relationship Manager. For details of other fees applicable to the fund, please refer to the fund's prospectus, fund fact sheet, or other offering documents such as bilateral Subscription Agreement.
Private Equity Access³	The Bank is acting as your referrer only and not as your agent or principal. The Bank and/or any of its associates will benefit from your investment in a company/fund you are referred to.	For details of fees applicable to each referral, please refer to the Referral Agreement or contact your Relationship Manager.

¹The reference to “management fee” can include other components, being other types of fees, rebates or payments that the fund house receives and/or chooses to apportion to their distributors. Each fund house may differ in its classification or terminology of the fees they receive and of the fees they apportion to their distributors. For example, they may include investor relation fees and distribution fees when computing payments to their distributors. Typically we expect that the types of fees and/or amounts they pay to their distributors would be set out in their offering documents.

³Private Equity Access is a referral service where the Bank refers the client to the external company or other entity, thereby providing the client with access to private equity investment opportunities (for example, in companies and funds) which the Bank may be apprised of from time to time. The fees set out herein would apply to other referrals where the Bank receives fees, unless conducted via other divisions. Investments referred by the Bank are not DBS approved products for the purposes of formulating any recommendations and are not part of any suitability discussions.
